There are many advocates of mulching, and it is generally regarded as a very necessary and profitable course. One of our contemporaries asserts, however, that thorough cultivation is better than mulching. Besides, it says that in mulching there is danger from fire in dry time, and also that the roots run up toward the surface, which is always moist from the mulch.

When cuttings are being rooted by amateurs in small tin or earthen ves-sels placed in sunny windows, the pro-cess can be forwarded by painting the receptacle black, the color absorbing the heat and imparting it to the sand or earth, thus facilitating the starting of the roots.

HOUSEHOLD RECIPES.

Eggs a la Duchesse.-Boil half a dozen eggs for ten minutes; allow them to become quite cold; then divide them into quarters. Put two ounces of butter in a saucepan, and as it moits work in a tablespoonful of flour smoothly; and seasoning of salt, and stir off the fire until the flour is sufficiently cooked. Then pour in a large break ist cupful of rich stock, and add a tablespoonful of vinegar, two tablespoonful of mineed parsley and a pinch of cayenne. Bring to the boil, lay the eggs-in very gently, allow them to become thoroughly heat-ed through without being broken then n a saucepan, and as it melts work in a ed through without being broken, then arrange them tastefully on a hot dish, pour the sauce over them, and serve with a garnish of toasted sippets.

Carrot Soup a la Cressy.—Put three ounces of butter into a sauce-pan, and as it melts add a large onion, finely chopped; four ounces of lean ham, cut chopped; four ounces of lean ham, cut in tiny dice, two tablespoonfuls of chopped colory, and the red of twelve carrots, grated. Stew over a moderate fire, stirring frequently, until the vegetables acquire a nice color; then add two quarts of well-flavored stock, and simmer for about two hours. Skim carefully, pass the soup, and as much vegetable as possible, through a steve, pressing the pulp through with the back of a wooden spoon; season with cayenne and salt, reheat and serve with toasted dice of bread. toasted dice of bread.

Pelan,—Boil two fat young chickens in just water enough to cover them, and season with water to taste. When the chickens are just done remove from the pet. Put into the liquor one slice nice raw hath, and let it hoil down to one pint. Remove the ham; wash a pint of rice, put it in a pan and pour over it the chicken liquor, and set the pan in the steamer, where it should cook until the rice is tender, and each grain distinct. It should be stirred occasionally with a fork. See that the liquor is salt

Don't Mankey With the Sanke

Don't Monkey With the Sunke.

Don't Menkey With the Snake.

It is stated that a rattlesnake cannot bite if held up by the tail. Would you like to put the statement to a practical test? Probably not; but how often do you take far greater risks? A snakebite is not the only means of introducing poison into the system. If your liver is sluggish, it fails to remove the impurities from the blood which passes through it, and deadly poisons are thus thrown into the circulation, all the more dangerous because they are insidious. If your blood is impure, if your liver is out of order, if you have blotches, pimples, boils or eruptions, "don't monkey with the snake." Take Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, the only specific against all blood poisons, no matter of what name or nature. It is sold under a positive guarante that it will benefit or cure, or your money will be refunded.
